Mission Statement

Our mission is to foster research that is relevant to our communities. We bring researchers and communities together to build trust and mutual understanding.

The RECAB supports health-related communication and partnerships. We are the bridge between the Clinical and Translational Science Center and underserved communities. To make sure that UC Davis research is relevant to our communities, we advise and assist health scientists on connecting to communities and recommend educational approaches to Community Engagement Program staff. Our ultimate aims are to improve the knowledge, skills, and attitudes of both researchers and communities around pressing public health problems.
