Program Description:

The UC Davis School of Medicine Health Equity Academy – Leaders for Tomorrow's Healthcare (HEALTH) is a 6-session program hosted during fall 2020. HEALTH introduces high school students to various health professions, medical technology, and human body systems. In conjunction with leadership training, the program's emphasis is on community leadership, health disparities, and future opportunities in healthcare.

Program Highlights:

- Free – no cost to participate
- Meet health professionals and current medical students
- Learn about different career pathways in healthcare
- Network with other high school students and work in teams
- Research and address public health issues in your community
- Gain leadership opportunities and develop teamwork skills
- Participate in fun and interactive virtual activities
