It Takes a Village
Practical Strategies for Improving the Health of Communities

Thursday, November 21, 2019
12 Noon–1:30 PM (light lunch provided)
Room 2222, Medical Education Building
(4610 X Street), UC Davis School of Medicine

Community engagement is increasingly recognized as a key to effective translational medicine and improvements in national health. This presentation will guide academic health centers on how to better engage their communities and develop a program agenda informed by community participation.

Dr. Michener will present:
• Approaches to identifying community partners
• Methods of linking community partners and researchers
• The impact of community-informed strategies on translation, dissemination, and measurable improvements in health

About the Speaker:
Dr. Michener has spent his career at the interface between communities and academic centers, focusing on finding ways to make health care work better through multisector teams, community engagement, and practice redesign.

He is director of the Practical Playbook national program, which is supported by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the Health Resources and Services Administration, as well as the de Beaumont Foundation.

Free and open to the public, but registration is required.

To Register:
https://ucdimprovingcommunityhealth.eventbrite.com

Questions?
Contact the Center for Reducing Health Disparities:
HS-CRHD@ucdavis.edu OR (916) 703-9210

J. Lloyd Michener, M.D.
Professor of Family Medicine & Community Health
Duke University School of Medicine
Co-Editor
The Practical Playbook: Public Health and Primary Care Together &
The Practical Playbook II: Building Multisector Partnerships That Work

Health professionals and community members alike are welcome

UC Davis CTSC receives support from the NIH National Center for Advancing Translational Sciences (Award TR001860)