Master of Public Health

We develop public health leaders of the future by providing a high-quality Master's degree curriculum in partnership with the public health community. Our dynamic curriculum features experts in the areas of public health, epidemiology, veterinary medicine, biostatistics and informatics, social determinants of health, nutrition, health services research and policy, food safety, and infectious/zoonotic diseases.

The UC Davis MPH program is a member of ASPPH and accredited by CEPH, but does not use SOPHAS for admissions. Only one application is required for admissions and is submitted through the UC Davis Office of Graduate Studies, grad.ucdavis.edu/apply. Admission is for Summer Session II, which begins the first week of August.
